

New manufacturing feature for Queensland Safety Show

The Queensland Safety Show and Queensland Materials Handling return to the Brisbane Convention & Exhibition Centre from June 21 to 23 with a new feature: the Queensland Manufacturing Show.

During three busy days, organisers anticipate over 5,000 trade visitors and industry professionals will visit the co-located trade shows hosting over 200 exhibiting companies.

The Queensland Manufacturing Show will showcase the latest technologies in conventional and CNC machine tools, sheet metal working equipment, CAD/CAM software, programming systems and general industrial engineering products when it debuts at the co-located Queensland Safety Show.

Marie Kinsella, managing director of Australian Exhibitions & Conferences Pty Ltd, says the co-location of the Queensland Manufacturing Show with the established Safety Show will benefit both exhibitors and trade show visitors.

"Since the launch of the Queensland Safety Show in June 2006, it has become obvious that there is a gap in the market, leaving manufacturing and process professionals without a forum to keep up to date with latest technologies for their workplace."

"The Queensland Manufacturing Show will offer thousands of visitors the opportunity to make face to face contact with major suppliers of the latest technologies available, as well as keeping up to date with work health and safety requirements."

Complementing the products and services, the Queensland Safety Show will offer a line-up of very practical free manufacturing and workplace safety seminars. Experts will explain how to attract funding, what to expect from new OHS laws, how meet obligations manageably and build profitability.

Sponsored by myosh, the Queensland Safety Show, Materials Handling Show and co-located Queensland Manufacturing Show run from June 21 to 23, 2011, at the Brisbane Convention & Exhibition Centre.
