

New features and WHS law seminars at Queensland Safety Show in June

The Queensland Safety Show returns to the Brisbane Convention & Exhibition Centre from June 21 to 23 with two new features: the Queensland Manufacturing Show and expert seminars dealing with the new work health and safety laws.

WorkCover QLD have thrown their support behind the Queensland Safety Show and during three busy days, organisers anticipate over 5,000 trade visitors and industry professionals will visit the co-located trade shows hosting over 200 exhibiting companies.

Complementing the products and services, the Queensland Safety Show will offer a line-up of very practical free workplace safety seminars. Experts including representatives of Safe Work Australia, Norton Rose law firm, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry Queensland and Enterprise Connect will explain how to attract funding, what to expect from new WHS laws, how to meet obligations manageably and within budget.

The Queensland Manufacturing Show will showcase the latest technologies in CAD/CAM software, programming systems and general industrial engineering products when it debuts at the co-located Queensland Safety Show.

Marie Kinsella, Managing Director of Australian Exhibitions & Conferences Pty Ltd, says the co-location of the Queensland Manufacturing Show with the established Safety Show will benefit both exhibitors and trade show visitors.

"Since the launch of the Queensland Safety Show in June 2006, it has become obvious that there is a gap in the market, leaving engineering and process professionals without a forum to keep up to date with the latest technologies for their workplace."

Show organisers say the comprehensive array of safety solutions span from corporate health through to vehicle safety.

First time Queensland Safety Show exhibitor and well-known provider of pain relief, Voltaren will promote their products to the corporate health sector complete with complimentary massages on their stand.

For exhibitors, it is about creating interactivity between themselves and the customer and Bullex will do just that with an interactive display of their products and fire training services.

"In a few hours under one roof, visitors can find controls for almost any workplace risk and update themselves on the latest technology," says Marie Kinsella.

Sponsored by myosh, the Queensland Safety Show, Materials Handling Show and co-located Queensland Manufacturing Show run from June 21 to 23, 2011, at the Brisbane Convention & Exhibition Centre.
